Leading Manufacturer of HDPE bottles in the UK

Nampak Plastics is a subsidiary of Nampak, a large South African packaging organisation specialising in a wide range of packaging solutions.

Nampak Plastics is the UK's leading manufacturer of High Density Polyethylene (HDPE) bottles and produces over two billion bottles per annum for the food and drink industry, particularly the UK milk bottle industry. With its position at the forefront of innovation in the industry, Nampak has achieved world records in the last few years through introducing a lightweight, environmentally friendly bottle known as Infini.

Choosing Milton Keynes

Nampak Plastics has held its headquarters in Milton Keynes since the late 1980s and has eight other sites spread across the UK and Northern Ireland.

600 staff work across the UK and approximately 150 staff within and around Milton Keynes. Staff at the Milton Keynes plant are often long standing and families have held positions at the site for generations.

Working with Partners

Milton Keynes has a great community spirit and Nampak welcome work experience from the colleges in the area. Local engineering courses mean that the skills pool in Milton Keynes is wide and we are often on the hunt for graduates who are interested in a role on site. Currently apprenticeship opportunities are being explored with local partners and are heavily involved in local CSR initiatives such as Young Enterprise.

Doing Business in Milton Keynes

The distribution network and strategic location of Milton Keynes are both critical for the success of Nampak Plastics. The nature of the products manufactured at the site means demand across the country increases all the time. The plastic milk bottle is the most widely purchased item of packaging with four billion purchased every year in the UK. Therefore Nampak needs the most efficient distribution network – without this Nampak wouldn't have grown to the position it is in today.

“The central location of Milton Keynes has certainly given Nampak a strategic advantage with regards to distribution, especially considering it is the largest site in the UK”

Award Winners

Nampak Plastics, the UK's leading producer of plastic milk bottles, has triumphed at the international DuPont Awards for Packaging Innovation, winning silver in the Packaging Innovation category for its multi-award-winning Infini bottle
